

JIBJOB

< ANNOTATED SPECIFICATION />

Ministère du Job et Bonheur, Digital and Innovation Directorate

Reference: JEB/DNI/2026-003

Version: 1.0, for selected technical service providers 1.1, VERSION REVIEWED BY THE MINISTER

Your contacts within the ministerial cabinet:

- ✓ Florine Pontailac, legal advisor, f.pontailac@job-et-bonheur.fr
- ✓ Thomas Vignal, digital advisor, t.vignal@job-et-bonheur.fr
- ✓ Benjamin Sellami, communications advisor, b.sellami@job-et-bonheur.fr

 Note from Benjamin Sellami: I am indeed your main point of contact for communication matters. B.S.

 JEB: BEFORE YOU READ ANY FURTHER. Thomas tells me that the Ministry's messages are landing on your side in something called "quarantine". I asked why, someone mentioned filtering and sender reputation, I did not retain all of it. What I did retain is that you will receive nothing unless you do something. So go to <https://security.microsoft.com/quarantine>, release our messages, and allow the sender so you do not have to do it thirty times over. Check it several times a day, there will be a lot coming. And if anyone ever asks who chose this infrastructure: it was not me, it was Thomas.

 JEB: Benji made a very neat document but he did NOT understand what I meant when I explained the concept to him. So I took over the doc. What I struck through is what he wrote. What follows is what you actually need to build.
By the way: ProfilsActifs was the working name. The real name is JibJob. Because that one slaps.
(Note from Benjamin for the team: I was not aware of these annotations. My requirements in the communications section remain valid regardless. B.S.)

1. Institutional Context

As part of the digital strategy of the Ministère du Job et Bonheur and in response to new professional communication practices, ProfilsActifs proposes an innovative approach to showcasing job seekers' skills.

Starting from the observation that traditional resumes do not always allow candidates to stand out, ProfilsActifs introduces a short-video presentation format, coupled with a professional aptitude certification system.

 JEB: It's TikTok for the unemployed. Simple as that. You post short videos, you show who you are, companies see you, they like. That's the job market of the future. I got the idea watching my niece use her phone. Benji put "skills-showcasing tool." That's true. But it's also a social network. Let's own it.

2. Description of the service expected: what I ACTUALLY want

2.1 Functional scope

Job seeker space:

- Creation of a professional profile (identity, skills, target sector, location)
- Publication of presentation videos

 JEB: Yes, and the videos are THE heart of the thing. The feed needs to look like TikTok. Vertical scroll, full screen, no distractions. The profile is secondary, the video is everything.

- ✓ ~~Completion of the JEB professional certification questionnaire (obtaining a badge displayed on the profile)~~

 JEB: The questionnaire is an EXCELLENT idea I had. Here's how it works:

- 100 questions on work aptitude, motivation, professional values, etc.
- The candidate answers all the questions before getting access to the recruiter feed
- If they get a good score, they get the "JEB Work Permit", displayed prominently on their profile
- The Work Permit is mandatory to be visible to premium recruiters

Thomas wanted to "test this with a UX firm." No. It's 100 questions, it's decided.

- ✓ Tracking of interactions received (views, likes, recruiter contacts)

 JEB: The LIKES. Likes matter. I'll explain why below.

Recruiter space:

- Access to the catalog of job-seeker profiles
- Filtering by skills, sector, location, certification status
- Interaction with profiles (making contact, marking favorites, LIKE)
- Dashboard tracking contacted candidates

 JEB: The like is essential. Here's why:

A candidate's unemployment benefit amount will be calculated partly based on the number of likes received on their videos.

It's in the terms and conditions (page 47). It's legal (to be confirmed by Florine but I didn't wait). The idea is simple: if you're successful on the network, you're successful in life. That's the market. Under 100 likes per video = no benefits. Above = you get paid.

I know it sounds surprising but it's a solid economic logic. And it motivates the unemployed to be active.

Benji said he didn't want to "communicate it like that." So we don't mention it in official communications. But you, you need to build it into the system.

Administration space:

- Moderation of profiles and video content
- Management of the certification questionnaire (editing questions, I handle that myself)
- Global dashboard

3. Technical constraints

3.1 Architecture

- ✓ Responsive web application (mobile and desktop)
- ✓ Backend with relational database
- ✓ Documented RESTful API
- ✓ Multi-role authentication (job seeker / recruiter / admin)

 JEB: OK for all that.

3.2 Video

- ✓ Video embedding via iframe (YouTube, Vimeo) is accepted
- ✓ ~~If direct upload is implemented, files must be size-limited (max 100 MB per video)~~
- ✓ A video preview must be possible without leaving the profile page

 JEB: The video feed must autoplay when you land on it. Like TikTok. That's the effect.

3.3 Visual identity (Benji's section)

The solution must comply with the visual identity elements of the Ministère du Job et Bonheur. A style guide will be provided by the Communications Directorate.

 JEB: Benji might send you a style guide. You can use it. But honestly what matters is that it looks like TikTok, not a government website. Make it young, dynamic.

Note from Benjamin Sellami added after review: I want to clarify that the style guide is mandatory and will be sent separately. It takes precedence over the guidance above regarding visual identity. B.S.

3.4 Performance

- ✓ The profile feed must be paginated (or infinite scroll, even better)
- ✓ The certification questionnaire must support saving progress mid-session

 JEB: No saving the questionnaire. If you leave, you start over. It also tests perseverance.

4. Expected MANDATORY deliverables

Week 1: proof of concept (Friday project review)

- ✓ Functional profile feed (with autoplay videos if possible)
- ✓ Job-seeker account creation with video upload/link
- ✓ First version of the questionnaire (even partial) → No, the questionnaire must be COMPLETE, all 100 questions, from week 1. It's the heart of the product.

 JEB: THURSDAY MORNING I WANT TO BE ABLE TO SHOW IT. I'm really counting on you for this.

Week 2: final version

- ✓ All functional spaces (job seeker, recruiter, admin)
- ✓ Complete 100-question questionnaire + Work Permit badge
- ✓ Integrated likes system (with visible counter + benefits logic in the backend)
- ✓ Admin dashboard
- ✓ Technical documentation + retrospective

5. Points of attention A word from the Minister

~~ProfilActifs is a skills-showcasing tool, not a social network. The engagement dimension (likes, shares) is not within the scope of the demonstrator version.~~

 JEB: ~~WRONG. Benji said that so as not to hurt my feelings but he's wrong.~~ JibJob IS a social network. And likes ARE within scope. They're even THE scope. You're building something unique. A social network that changes the way French people look for work. Don't underestimate what you're doing. I trust you. JEB
